

Ben Elliott: Junior Driver Coaching

Ben Elliott Racing Ltd have become the accredited driver coaching company for Ginetta Cars. The company's instructor, Ben Elliott races in the Texaco Havoline Ginetta Championship.

Ben has coached over 30 junior drivers in the last 2 years, many of whom have gone on to win their Championship. His calm and smooth instructing technique appeals to the young drivers and he seems to build a rapport with them where they trust each other 100%

Malcolm Bird and David Corfan previously hired Ben to work with their DMN Racing outfit: "We have had experience with many different instructors and their styles vary a lot. For us, Ben has a good blend of encouragement, calmness and critique that allows us to improve our ability."

"Ben's tuition and coaching was a major factor in helping our Dunlop Race Academy winner, Simon Shaw, qualify a stunning 6th in his first ever motorsport event in a field of 35 more experienced drivers" added Dunlop's James Bailey.

Ben will be on hand to offer his advice and experience from when the customer receives their car up to they start racing. One to one instruction is hugely beneficial for all racing drivers but especially the young ones who lack some driving skills before they get into the race car.

All young drivers will have to attend a Young Driver Assessment and Training day with Ben Elliott Racing Ltd before they can go out on track. Once they have completed that they can go on to a circuit but they will have to have a qualified instructor next to them at all times for insurance reasons.

Skills taught include an improved use of vision, racing lines, understanding the physics of the cars behaviour in a corner and braking techniques. However, the training program can be tailored to your needs

Past Junior clients include Henry Surtees, Robert Gaffney, Domnic Lakeman-Pettit and new-to-Ginetta in 2007 Cassey Watson and Nina Jo-Atkinson who progress from the Saxmax Championship.

Prices start from just £200 for 1 day's tuition in your own car.
